

Clinical Fellowships in Endoscopy, St Mark's Hospital

In January 2023 we will be inviting applications for our four, 12 month Senior Clinical Fellow posts in Endoscopy at St Mark's Hospital, to start in September 2023. The Wolfson Unit for Endoscopy at St Marks is a world renowned state of the art facility for the practice and teaching of endoscopy. It is a tertiary referral and national training centre, and specialises in complex diagnostic and therapeutic endoscopy, including large polypectomies (EMR, ESD and laparoscopic-endoscopic techniques), double balloon enteroscopy, video capsule endoscopy, endoscopic surveillance of high-risk groups and treatment of radiation proctopathy. The Unit was the first site in London to undertake Bowel Cancer Screening in 2006, covering a population of approx. 1 million.

This post would be ideal for an experienced gastroenterology trainee towards the end of their specialist training who wishes to increase their experience in diagnostic, therapeutic and emergency endoscopy. The successful applicant would have scheduled training and service endoscopy lists and form part of the team providing emergency endoscopy. There would also be the opportunity to partake in the research and audit activities ongoing within the department.

For further details / informal visits contact: Dr Adam Humphries, Consultant Gastroenterologist & Clinical Lead for Endoscopy, adam.humphries@nhs.net